Hey Momma,

I write to you whilst sitting on deck enjoying the evening sun.

I hope all is well and you aren't missing me too much.

I have made use of the gloves you knitted me as it gets cold here on deck.

It won't be long until I'm reunited with Harold and Ernie. I'll send them your love.

Dear Frances,

It seems so odd to believe that I will see you in a few days.
I still can't believe my luck!
When you left, I felt sure that I would not see you for many years. Your mother has been so kind to me in recent months. I still can't believe she asked me to come along. Yesterday as we waved goodbye to the people at Southampton she stood next to me. And she told me that this would be a new beginning for us all. I think she is right.

I will see you soon, Your friend, Phoebe.

Dear Ma and Da & Kids.
I had a lovely journey to the Ship, you should see it Ma the biggest thing I have seen & its on water.

The people I have met seem fine and I am sharing a cabin with a young girl, & all new, clean & shiny. I am missing you and wish you were all here to see this grand boat.

We sail tomorrow so I will write again when we reach New York,

Don't worry about me Ma
Love Molly,
P.S. Thanks for the money x.

Dear Dad!
Mum and I are missing you so much, but it's only a few days before we all have our tea together again.

The Titanic is an amazing ship, but to me, it's no where near as good as our little semi detached house.

Your loving son, John
